DEAD MARCH IN LONDON

IN EAST VENICE WITH STANDS ATTACK OF PLANES.

LONDON, June 13.—Great crowds lined the streets today in the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral and stood for hours in the rain, awaiting the arrival of King George, Queen Mary and Dowager Queen Alexandra for the memorial services for Field Marshal Earl Kitchener.

The doors of the cathedral opened shortly after 10 o'clock and the vast building was rapidly filled with people who were fortunate enough to have tickets. Thousands of applicants for admission have been refused and it was said that a building three times the size of St. Paul's would not hold the army officers who wished to attend the services.

It was announced that the service would be practically devoted to any military ceremonial. No troops lined the streets through which the royal party was to pass and there was no guard of honor.

A feature of the service was the part taken by the band of the Royal Engineers and Drummers of the Irish Guard, of which corps Lord Kitchener was honorary colonel.

The "Dead March" was played by the band and the drummers, after the benediction the guards men were scheduled to sound the "last post." In addition to the services in St. Paul's the memory of the dead soldier was honored by a ceremony in Westminster Abbey while a third service was held in Canterbury cathedral.

PLANES ATTACK VENICE.

Russian Forces Hit Hard by Central Allies in the East.

BERLIN, June 13.—(By wireless to Sayville).—A squadron of Austrian aeroplanes attacked Venice on Sunday night. Several other points in Northern Italy were bombarded. An official Austrian report of June 12 says the raid was successful. German and Austro-Hungarian troops delivered a heavy counter attack on Russian forces advancing in northeastern Bukovina and drove them back, the official Austrian statement of June 12 says. The Austrians captured 1300 Russians.

The Overseas News Agency says that the Dutch steamship Roepst, sailing from Amsterdam for the Dutch East Indies, was compelled to leave her mail in England.

PARIS, June 13.—The battle for Verdun has broken out with unusual violence on the east bank of the Meuse after the full following the capture of Fort Vaux. The Germans put the respite to good use. They brought up fresh effectives, reformed their lines and advanced their artillery to positions from which they have begun a methodical pounding of the main French defenses, especially the powerful batteries at Tavanne and Fort Souville. At the same time the French advanced line, which was plastered with shells all day Sunday, has been subjected to a series of fierce onslaughts at Thiaumont farm, the position on which the line pivots.

The French on their part have not been idle during the past few days. Thiaumont farm bristles with well placed machine guns and the German masses, toiling up the slope which leads to the French positions, have been driven back again and again, while their reserves have been kept copiously showered by sprays of shells from the French batteries at the rear and on the other side of the river.

The fighting continues as desperately as ever, but the situation on both sides remains unmodified so far. The fighting is characterized by eye witnesses as infernal. It is estimated that the Germans used up 30,000 infantry in assaults on the trenches west of Fort Vaux and at Thiaumont. The attacks followed each other in such close succession as practically to merge one in the other.

GALLIPOLIS, O., June 13.—The residence and store of John B. McClure, former postmaster, were destroyed at Chown City last night by incendiaries. The loss is $10,000. McClure and his family narrowly escaped death in the flames.

CANTON.—The $10,500 verdict for Mrs. Ellen W. Canine, an Indianapolis trained nurse, against the estate of the late Robt. R. Jacob, former Wayneburg and Pittsburg merchant, for breach of promise to marry, has been upheld and Common Pleas Judge W. P. Stephenson of West Union, today notified Canton counsel in the case that he had overruled a motion for a new trial of the case.

WASHINGTON.—A constitutional amendment to disqualify federal judges from holding any elective office for at least two years after leaving the bench, was introduced today by Senator Thomas, democrat, of Colorado. Two weeks ago he made a speech in the senate deprecating the efforts to nominate Justice Hughes as a presidential candidate.

BALTIMORE.—Fire, which followed an explosion in a grain elevator of the Pennsylvania railroad at Canton, a suburb, destroyed the huge structure this afternoon, together with about 1,600,000 bushels of grain, mostly wheat and oats. Two steamships which were loading at the elevator caught fire and may be destroyed as it seemed impossible to remove them to a place of safety.

TRAIN KILLS OFFICER CHASING A FIGHTER

MASSILLON, O., June 13.—William Lupe, 19, and Patrolman Louis H. Bamberger, 43, were instantly killed by a Pennsylvania mail train in front of the station at 2 o'clock this morning as Bamberger gave chase across the tracks to a party of men from Canton, who Massillon police were told, had been fighting.

Ralph Murrell saved himself by jumping. Lupe, Murrell and Mike Pucel, met a party of three other Canton men at the station. All had missed the last interurban car and were waiting for a train which left Massillon shortly after 3 o'clock. An argument arose and Pucel summoned Bamberger who was in a street nearby. When the officer approached the men ran crossing the train between the cars. As the party stood on the track looking for the fleeing men a fast westbound mail train ran them down.

WILSON INSISTS THE U.S. MUST BE READY TO SPEAK

American Should Not Bluster Declares President at West Point.

FUTURE IS UNCERTAIN

Ringling Address Given Military Cadets by Chief Executive.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 13.—President Wilson, making his first address since the presidential campaign began, today discussed preparedness, militarism, Americanism, the causes of the war in Europe, peace, the Monroe Doctrine, divided allegiance and the ideals of America. He declared it is the present imperative duty of the United States to be prepared, adding "mankind is going to know that when America speaks she means what she says."

The president said the United States should not be a blustering nation, a nation with a chip on its shoulder, but a calm nation which will withhold its hand as long as possible and strike only for victory.

The president's address ran through almost the entire list of subjects discussed by former Justice Hughes in his telegram accepting the republican nomination, and he declared that the United States is ready to join with other nations to see that the kind of justice it believes in is given.

Shaking his finger emphatically, the president told the graduates of the military academy and a large audience that nobody who does not put America first can be tolerated. He added, however, that true Americans should set a good example. The president declared the present war did not come by accident, but that it had to come. The United States wants nothing from Europe, he said.

she must get by war. He sounded a warning that no man can tell what the next day will bring forth in the world's events.

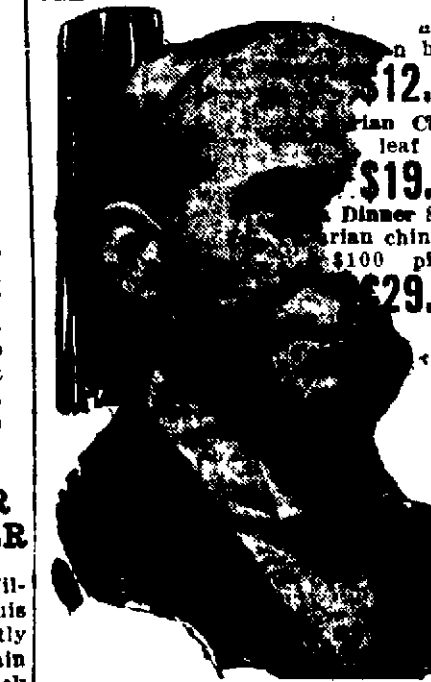

The word "Americanism" was

CURTIN LEAVES FOR CONVENTION

Is Allen County's First National Democratic Delegate Since 1904.

For the first time in twelve years an Allen county democrat will represent the Fourth Ohio congressional district at a national convention. Emmett R. Curtin of Lima will attend the gathering which opens at St. Louis tomorrow. The last man from this county to wear a delegate's badge at a national assemblage of the party was Judge A. D.

Emmett R. Curtin.

Miller, whose trip, oddly enough, was to the same city, where Alton Brooks Parker was nominated in 1904.

Mr. Curtin's fellow delegate from the Fourth district is Howard A. Amos of the Sidney Daily News. Alternates to the convention are Alvah E. Binkley, a Greenville investment security agent, and Dr. Gaiher Jennings of West Milton, Miami county. They left yesterday on the Ohio special which National Committeeman Ed. H. Moore chartered, but Mr. Curtin will go late this afternoon by way of Sidney.

Ralherst in a dashing canyon fighting 20 miles north of Santa Clara near here. The Americans were unhurt.

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 13.—A posse of the Mexican frontier, 40 miles south of M., yesterday struck a band of Villa followers, a trooper of K. cavalry, in the left leg, a report made today by Colonel Horatio Sickle, the border patrol here, who investigation of the

The reports said that the band, said to be under the leadership of Chief Mori, recently broke through the line of Carranza troops established in the northern Yaqui river valley and have been committing depredations in the district since, several isolated ranches being attacked and a number of Mexicans killed.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Fifteen hundred additional troops were being mobilized today for Mexican service in view of continued reports of anti-American demonstrations in Mexico and bandit raids on Texas territory. Ten companies of coast artillery drawn from fortifications between Portland, Maine and Sandy Hook, and a battalion of engineers from the barracks in Washington were under orders to join General Pershing's army and assist in guarding against further border raids in the region near Laredo.

OHIO FIREMEN IN STATE ASSEMBLY OPEN THEIR SESSION

Visiting Fire Laddies Are Being Royally Entertained in Lima.

Thursday is Big Day When Great Parade Will Take Place.

MERCHANTS FREE CHECK ROOM

In co-operation with officials of the Firemen's convention, local merchants have arranged for a free check room on Thursday which is the big day of the convention. It will be housed in a large tent on the public square and will be sufficiently large to accommodate every one. The test for the occasion was donated by S. G. Holoson.

With the opening of the Ohio Firemen's association in Lima today, more than 200 members of this organization registered at the headquarters which has been established in the office of Fire Chief Mack, at the Central fire station. Officers of the organization claim that before the day is over this number will reach 500.

The morning was spent in registering new arrivals and making visitors acquainted with the city. Several trips were made this morning by visitors in the new motor truck through different parts of Lima. Pictures of the delegations that had arrived up to noon were also taken.

The first session of the convention commenced this afternoon at 2 o'clock and continued until late in the afternoon. The address of welcome to the visitors was made by Mayor Simpson and the response was given by S. P. Pond, president of the organization. The meeting was adjourned after committees were appointed.

On Wednesday members of the Ohio Firemen's association will meet at the Memorial hall to elect officers for the ensuing year. The officers at the present time are: The P. Pond, president, DeGraft, O.; Paul Morton, vice president, Columbus; D. K. Moser, secretary, Warren; and G. W. Knisely, treasurer.

At a meeting held tonight at the Chamber of Commerce, J. E. Latta, of Columbus, is down on the program for an address on "Fire Prevention." Following this a discussion will be indulged in by George Kniflock, of Mansfield. Subjects for round table discussion are: "What are You Doing to Prevent

DEMOCRAT PLATFORM MAY AIM AT CAPTURE OF PROGRESSIVE VOTES

W. J. Bryan, As a Convention Reporter, Urges Adoption of Broad Stand.

MARSHALL GAINS FAVOR

Vice President Has Little Opposition and Renomination of 1912 Ticket Appears As Good As Settled.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—William J. Bryan, newspaper reporter from Nebraska, arrived here today to "cover" the democratic national convention. He asserted most emphatically that his repertorial role would be his first interest. But the former secretary of state, chief builder of many democratic platforms including the one on which the party now stands, and author of numerous peace treaties, has a new treaty to propose to other democratic leaders—a pact between the democrats and progressives to induce most of the bull moosers to support the democratic ticket next fall.

"Now is the opportune time for the democratic party to get most of progressives," said Mr. Bryan in a hasty across-the-corridor interview as he reached his hotel today.

"The progressives were not all satisfied with the results of their convention at Chicago," Mr. Bryan continued. "I believe the time is ripe for the democrats to secure a large part of the progressive vote. They are closest to us in sympathy, anyway, you know," Mr. Bryan added. He indicated that this might be largely accomplished by the writing of the democratic platform with progressive planks that would appeal to the bull moose.

When Mr. Bryan arrived few of the democratic leaders were out of bed but he held an impromptu reception in the hotel lobby and with difficulty made his way through a crowd of hand-shakers to his room.

Delegates gathering for the democratic national convention have turned from directions of tickets and platform to consideration of a chairman of the new national committee and those to be associated with him in the management of President Wilson's campaign for re-election.

Three names are under consideration today for the chairmanship. They are: United States Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware; Homer H. Cummings, of Connecticut, vice chairman of the present committee, and Colonel E. M. House of New York.

President Wilson has indicated that any one of the three men was agreeable to him.

Wilbur W. Marsh, national committeeman from Iowa, is most likely to be chosen as treasurer to succeed

RICHE ADDRESSES THE OHIO PYTHIANS

Lima Man, Past Supreme Chancellor, Orator of Day at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—The 47th annual convention of the Ohio Knights of Pythias, which opened a three days' session here with a special meeting last night and the convention of the Ohio Pythian Sisters, also in session here, has broken all past convocation attendance records, according to the local committees. It is predicted that today will see 10,000 wearers of the tri-colored badge in Cleveland, not including local knights. Eight hundred knights arrived on a special train from Cincinnati last night to attend the business sessions which began this morning.

Today's program of the knights includes a business session of the Grand Lodge and an address of welcome by Mayor Harry L. Davis this morning; band concert, drills and an address by Past Supreme Chancellor Walter B. Richie, at a local park this afternoon, and a banquet to Past Grand Chancellors and a boat ride this evening.

The Pythian Sisters will hold Grand Temple sessions this morning and afternoon. A boat ride is on the evening's program.

Rolla Wells. Henry Morgenthau the democratic party to get most of progressives," said Mr. Bryan in a hasty across-the-corridor interview as he reached his hotel today.

The new national committee meets on Saturday and expects to select the chairman at that time. The committee members generally agree that they would prefer to name as leader one of their own members and will do so unless President Wilson wants some one else. Mr. Cummings is almost certain to be the man if the chairman is taken from within their own number.

Colonel E. M. House is President Wilson's close friend and has carried out many confidential missions for the White House.

Prospects of a fight over a vice presidential nominee diminished today as incoming delegates lined up behind Vice President Marshall. Some of the candidates themselves declared that they would not attempt to oppose him.

There was some talk today of a coalition of western states to secure the nomination of a western man. Informal conferences have been held between delegation leaders of far west and northwestern states to that end, but so far nothing tangible has resulted.

Governor Stewart, of Montana, disclaimed vice presidential aspirations.

Friends of former Secretary Bryan today circulated reports that Judge Thompson, a candidate for Nebraska's place on the resolutions committee and a Bryan state leader, intends to present peace, prohibition and anti-militarist issues in the platform-making committee. If seated there.

"These reports are merely part of the Nebraska fight against Mr. Bryan," said Judge Thompson. He denied that he had planned to present such planks to the resolutions committee.

MARSHALL FOR SECOND PLACE

Sentiment Strong for Renomination of Vice President.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Delegates to the democratic national convention, which opens here at noon tomorrow appeared to be interested in two questions today. One was whether Vice President Marshall would be renominated or whether the favorite sons would insist upon their names going before the convention for a ballot.

The other was the probable action of the delegates with regard to the demand of the suffragists for an unequivocal declaration in the platform in favor of equal rights.

Sentiment for the re-nomination of Vice President Marshall appeared so strong today, leaders said, that there was talk among some of starting a movement to have him named without going through the formality of taking a ballot. The talk of naming Secretary of War Baker for the second place on the ticket ended almost as suddenly as it started.

The war secretary had much to do with putting the quietus to his boom by declaring before he left Washington for the convention city that he was for Marshall and that the mention of his name was merely "friendly enterprise." The fact that Mr. Baker had just left President Wilson when he announced that he favored Mr. Marshall for renomination also gave support to the idea of having Mr. Marshall redesignated.

of the candidate without calling the roll. It was said that Governor John P. Moorehead, of Nebraska, may withdraw his name as a candidate for vice president. The Nebraska delegation is instructed for him and if he carries out his plan to withdraw other candidates in the field may do likewise, it was said.

Early today it was reported here that President Wilson had sent word to St. Louis that he regarded Indiana as one of the most important battle grounds of the coming campaign and that he would be pleased to see delegates act as a unit in re-nominating the vice president.

Suffragists who came here from Chicago where they were compelled to accept what they consider a compromise plank in the republican platform or suffer complete defeat, are prepared today to continue their fight for a straight-out declaration for votes for women. The suffragists are divided into two groups, one representing the National American Woman Suffrage Association and the other Woman's party, which was organized last week in Chicago by members of the Congressional Union for Women's Suffrage. The latter organization is not disposed to compromise. Its leaders are prepared to make a strong fight for a federal constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote in all the states. What action the resolutions committee will take leaders of the democracy hesitate to forecast, but there are some among them who believe the democrats will go at least as far as the republicans who declared their belief in the principle of equal suffrage but asserted that it was for the states to decide whether women should have the right to vote.

Representatives of the National Association Opposed to Women's Suffrage, wearing red roses, are here to combat the efforts of the supporters of equal rights. They claim they won a victory when they appeared before the republican resolution committee in Chicago.

The majority of the 1,032 delegates to the convention are due today and the hotel district of St. Louis became more animated as hundreds made their appearance, some of the delegates marching to their quarters behind brass bands.

Aside from welcoming the arriving delegates, much of the day was given over to the holding of caucuses for the selection of committee assignments. More than half the state delegations planned to hold their state meetings today and tonight. In many cases the selections have been made and the caucuses were mere formalities.

Democratic leaders looked forward with interest to the arrival today of Secretary of War Baker and William J. Bryan. Mr. Baker is due here late in the afternoon. He will be the personal representative of President Wilson on the ground and is expected to bring the last word from the president. Report has it that the secretary of war has with him the final drafts of the plank in which President Wilson is most interested and will convey the wishes of Mr. Wilson to Senator Stone who will be chairman of the resolutions committee and others before the platform is prepared for the convention.

With the coming of Mr. Bryan speculation increased among the delegates as to whether he will appear before the resolution committee and advocate a preparedness plank along the lines of his often-expressed views and whether he will urge the committee to adopt some sort of a declaration on the liquor question.

Whether the resolutions committee will hold a public hearing to receive suggestions for planks to be inserted in the platform has not yet been determined. The suffragists desire such a hearing. Labor leaders representing the American Federation of Labor who are here with 14 planks similar to those presented to the republicans last week, also want a hearing, as do certain societies interested in immigration and associations favoring the extension of civil service among government employees.

Among others expected to appear before the committee are Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhouse and Richard Wainwright, retired, with a delegation from the Navy League. They will present the views of the league as to the enlargement of the navy.

Senator Stone, former Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, who will also be a member of the resolution committee, and several other leaders continued the consideration of platform matters today. The committee will be named tomorrow. It was immediately organized and according to present indications, the platform will be completed Wednesday night. No report will be made to the convention until Friday morning, however.

Demands for tickets to the Coliseum continue to grow today but there were none to be had by the late comers as the apportionment of seats has already been made. The management of the Coliseum last night locked out 120 workmen and all representatives of the national committee for three hours and readmitted the workmen only after the national committee had agreed to give the Coliseum managers four boxes containing 22 seats for all sessions of the convention.

Several days ago the attention of the national committee was called to a clause in the agreement with the management of the Coliseum, which the committee had not noticed at the time of signing. This clause, the Coliseum manager said, requires that any one renting the building must give to the managers the use of four boxes.

M'CLURE DAMAGE SUIT TO BE PUSHED BY HIS ESTATE

Plaintiff in Case Against O. E. Co., Dies Before Trial.

Judge Klinger Calls Docket and Assigns Cases For Hearing.

Death served as the judge in the case in which James A. McClure is plaintiff against the Ohio Electric Railway company. McClure, who on March 4 of this year filed suit against the company for damages for alleged personal injuries in the sum of $480.99, died suddenly a few weeks later, while attending a dance at the Lima state hospital.

In his petition, McClure averred that while he was driving a taxicab on December 1, 1915, on South Pine street, about 7 o'clock, when just north of Kibby street, he was struck by a Wayne-Pine street car. His back and neck was injured, he said, and his nervous system impaired, to the extent of $200. He asked for $200 for damages to his motor car and $80 for medical aid.

H. D. Grindle, his attorney, says the case will be prosecuted by McClure's estate. It is set down for trial on Saturday, June 24, when Judge Klinger called the docket yesterday afternoon. McClure was a grocer, doing business at 762 Green-lawn avenue.

The only criminal case set down for trial was that of the State of Ohio against Elmer V. Roberts, on June 26; C. F. Harsh, on July 5; M. Meredith, on July 10, and J. B. Morrissey, on July 17. All will be placed on trial separately. They are charged in 13 counts, with fraudulently disposing of stock in the Western Ohio Fence company, claiming it to be a paying proposition and solvent, when the company was insolvent and they are supposed to have been cognizant of this fact.

A general demurrer to quashing the indictment was overruled in court. Attorneys for Roberts and the three men sought by a demurrer to quash the indictment, which was overruled, and then sought to accomplish this by filing a general demurrer, which was overruled, and the case must come to trial. Hundreds of farmers in Auglaize township are interested in the outcome of the case, having purchased stock.

Local police officials were informed this morning by a communication from Police Chief Ertle, of Massillon, Ohio, that Edward Dibell, who several days ago was bound over to the grand jury under $300 bond on a charge of stealing an automobile, is wanted in that city for the theft of $50 from William Heinhart.

Although it is the desire of the Massillon chief that the prisoner be tried in that city on that charge, Police Chief McKinney stated that owing to the clear case against the prisoner on the theft of the automobile in Lima, he will be tried here.

THE CONTRAST.

What used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party, is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing upon no set of principles, advocating no national policy, numbering of course many wise but many foolish persons, some guided by selfishness, some unselfish, some patriotic, some thoughtless, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win.

In contrast with this the democratic party, having lived through years of doubt and hesitation, with a central philosophy sometimes more a yearning than a program, now presents a matured policy, evolved by a great leader, welcomed by his party associates as the real expression of their political ideals, and already in the full tide of demonstrating its justice and its wisdom, as applied to the domestic problems of the country and to our interests involved in the conflicts of arms that rage in the world.—From Secretary of War Baker's address before the Ohio democratic state convention.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles E. Hughes, in response to questions put to him today by newspaper men in regard to his attitude towards the support offered him by the German-Americans said it was "one of undiluted Americanism."

"I stated my position very clearly," said the republican presidential candidate, "in my telegram to the convention. My attitude is one of undiluted Americanism and anybody that supports me is supporting an out-and-out American and an out-and-out American policy, absolutely nothing else."

Republican leaders and personal political friends continued to call upon Charles E. Hughes today at his temporary headquarters in a hotel here to congratulate him on his nomination and to confer upon arrangements for the campaign.

One of the men expected to call today was former United States Senator W. Murray Crane, of Dalton, Mass., member of the sub-committee to arrange a date and place for the official notification to Mr. Hughes on his nomination. It was reported that Mr. Crane also would discuss with Mr. Hughes the selection of a chairman of the republican national committee.

Mr. Hughes expects to remain here until Monday when he will go to Providence, R. I., to attend a commencement exercise of Brown University from which he was graduated.

National republican headquarters will be established in New York with a second office in Chicago. In the opinion of Herbert Parsons, member of the republican committee from this state.

One of the first developments of the day at Mr. Hughes' headquarters was an announcement by Lafayette B. Gleason, secretary of the republican national convention, and also of the New York state republican committee which indicated that it will be several days yet before any decision is reached on the question of the man who is to succeed Charles D. Hilles as chairman of the republican national committee. Mr. Gleason said that a sub-committee of the national committee would "in a few days" call on the nominee to discuss the matter. Several names were under consideration but one man's guess was as good as another, he said as to who would be selected.

Work of Mrs. J. H. Phillips, Secretary, is Given Praise.

Visiting Nurses, Probation Officers and Housing Inspector Aided.

The efficient work done by the Charities and Relief committee of the Lima Chamber of Commerce from May 1, 1915, until May 1 of this year, is shown in a report, filed today by the committee, consisting of H. A. Holdridge, E. R. Curtin, Henry Wenner, Edward J. Maize, Frank Harman and S. S. Wheeler. Mrs. J. H. Phillips, secretary of the committee, is praised in the report. The work in detail is as follows:

Call made	414
Grocery orders	205
Coal orders	91
Calls for clothing, shoes, bedding, etc., supplied	214
Families aided	165
No. in families aided	827
Calls for labor (men and women) supplied	188
Families cared for during flood, July, 1915	48
Cases handled with other philanthropic workers and aid given when needed	227

Packages of seed given out	250

Names of girls given City Federation of Women's Clubs for Christmas cheer	82

The report says:

"We especially appreciate the hearty co-operation of the Visiting Nurses, the Housing Inspector and the Probation Officers. We feel that with the assistance of these workers we are able to reach all the needy people in our city and render material aid to the worthy and destitute."

"To the public we are most grateful for the donations of funds, clothing, bedding, coal, etc. We have endeavored to the best of our ability to help those who deserved to be helped and to eliminate duplication. We are very thankful to the people for any information they can give us and ask your earnest co-operation along all lines of charity work. The work of the secretary, Mrs. J. H. Phillips, has been very efficient."

see at the convention he replied that the nomination of a president, even without the preliminary spectacle of a battle of ballots, would be worth seeing. Unless a fight develops on the vice presidential nomination, which appears unlikely in view of the splendid record of Thomas Riley Marshall, the platform is the only matter on which a contest may develop.

"The democrats have something to which they may 'point with pride' this year," remarked Mr. Curtin this morning. "In the last few conventions their program consisted merely of a tendency to 'view with alarm'. With four years of successful administration under President Wilson the party has turned out a federal reserve banking law, a currency bill and a tariff, started a preparedness program and undertaken a rural credits measure. This administration has had many obstacles but has managed to keep out of war without sacrificing prestige, and you can bet that the 1922 delegates in St. Louis know they have something to endorse."

"And if the Ohio delegation, headed by three governors and a senator, is any criterion of the calibre of the convention, the peace-at-any-price and I-didn't-raise-my-boy-to-be-a-soldier bunch won't get farther than the calamity-howlers and the militarists."

WAR BUSINESS OF U. S. SMALL PART OF PROSPERITY

Is About 1.67 Per Cent of National Income From All Sources.

EXPOSE G. O. P. BOGEY

Munition Products Exported .75 Per Cent of Annual Production.

There is no question that Secretary of Commerce Redfield was ultra-conservative in his statement of facts when, in a letter to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Baiburn, he said the war business of this country is less than 5 per cent of the total.

The total domestic business of the United States in 1916 easily will reach $42,000,000,000.

The manufactured product alone will reach a value of $30,000,000,000.

The agricultural product which does not pass through process of manufacture will approximate in value $7,000,000,000.

The product of the mines, such as coal, natural gas, building stone, sand and gravel, which does not go through the manufacturing process, will approximate $2,500,000,000.

There is fully $2,000,000,000 worth of manufactures produced outside of the industrial centers and the large plants covered by the census of manufactures—in small shops and homes and in villages and hamlets—not included in the above $30,000,000,000 total.

There is $1,000,000,000 worth of unmanufactured products exported.

There is another $1,000,000,000 worth of miscellaneous production, including the unmanufactured portion of the forestry and fishery product.

Yearly Income $60,000,000,000.

So we have $42,000,000,000 to $45,000,000,000 worth of commodities altogether, not including earnings of railways, banks, wholesale and retail mercantile houses, insurance, shipping and so on, which make a total annual income approximating in this year of record prosperity not less than $60,000,000,000.

The above is a rough estimate of the total business of the country.

What is the volume of war business?

There are two senses in which the term "war business" may be taken. First, there is the munition business exclusively. This, though large as compared with its former peace total, is scarcely a drop in the bucket as compared with the country's business total.

For the entire twenty months of the war down to March 31, 1916, the total exports of explosives and firearms amounted to $330,000,000, or 6 per cent of the entire $5,500,000,000 of exports during that period.

For the single calendar year 1915 exports of explosives and firearms totaled approximately $200,000,000. For the sake of argument, let us suppose that munition exports in 1916 reach $300,000,000.

Less Than One Per Cent.

This is less than 3-4 of 1 per cent of the country's total production of commodities aggregating $42,000,000,000.

However, the term "war business" is much broader, in the sense used by Secretary Redfield, than "munition business." It includes all supplies used for war purposes, including leather and wool goods, chemicals, horses, automobiles, gasoline, and a large supply of agricultural products, including breadstuffs, meat and dairy products, and has been estimated by some authorities at about $1,000,000,000 for the calendar year.

The total "war business" in this sense is about 2.4 per cent of the country's total production.

If we take the total income of the United States from all industrial sources plus railway, banking, insurance, mercantile, shipping and other earnings, which may be roughly estimated at $60,000,000,000, we find that the war business is 1.67 per cent of the total.

In any sense of the term, therefore, the war business of the United States is such a small percentage of the total that politicians who are depending upon the loss of war business as a bogey to scare the American people are likely to get disappointed.

Exports to All Countries.

The fact is, the total volume of our exports to all countries, belligerent and neutral, and for all purposes, industrial, commercial and war—is only 9 per cent of our total production.

Moreover, the present total production for domestic uses only, after deducting exports, is far greater than the total production both for domestic and export demand in 1913 and former years.

Finally, the present prospect is that the end of the war, by restoring to us a market for $500,000,000 of exports to Germany, Belgium, Austria-Hungary and other belligerents—a business which now is almost a complete loss—will not materially reduce even the total volume of our exports.

By way of summary we find the facts as regards war business to be these:

1. Munition products exported to Europe constitute only 3-4 of 1 per cent of the total annual production.

2. Total exports for war purposes approximate 2.4 per cent of the total production.

3. Total war business constitutes about 1.67 per cent of the gross national income from all sources.

4. Cessation of war will restore to the United States $500,000,000 of exports, which is about double the present annual munition exports.

PLUMBING CODE IS PREPARED FOR LIMA

first time in recent addresses. He constantly referred to the West Point graduates to whom he was speaking, but referred more to national and international problems. He warned the graduates against militarism.

The president's speech was frequently interrupted by applause and he was cheered as he concluded.

Following are some extracts from President Wilson's speech, which was lengthy:

"I look upon this body of men who are graduating today with a peculiar interest. I feel like congratulating them that they are living in a day not only so interesting, because fraught with change, but also because so responsible.

"In your case there are many extraordinary possibilities, because gentlemen, no man can certainly tell you what the immediate future is going to be either in the history of this country or in the history of the world. It is not by accident that the present great war came in Europe. Every element was there and the contest had to come sooner or later, and it is not going to be by accident that the results are worked out but by purpose—by the purpose of the men who are strong enough to have guiding minds and indomitable wills when the time for decision and settlement comes.

"And the part that the United States is to play has this distinction, that it is to be in any event a disinterested party. There is nothing that the United States wants that it has to get by war, but there are a great many things that the United States has to do. It has to see that its life is not interfered with by anybody else who wants something.

"These are the days when we are making preparation. And undoubtedly, gentlemen, it is the present imperative duty of America to be prepared.

"But we ought to know what we are preparing for. America, fortunately, does know what she wants to do with her force. We are not in for anything selfish and we want the whole mighty power of America thrown into that scale and not into any other.

"You know that the chief thing that is holding many people back from enthusiasm for what is called preparedness is the fear of militarism. You're not a militarist because you are military. Militarism does not consist in the existence of an army, not even in the existence of a very great army. Militarism is a spirit. It is a point of view. It is a system. It is a purpose. The purpose of militarism is to use armies for aggression. The spirit of militarism is the opposite of the civilian spirit—the citizen spirit in a country where militarism prevails, the military man looks down upon the civilian, regards him as inferior, thinks of him as intended for his, the military man's support and use; and just so long as America is America that spirit and point of view is impossible with us. There is as yet in this country so far as I can discover no taint of the spirit of militarism.

"We have talked a great deal about Americanism. It ought to be matter of pride with us to know what Americanism really consists in. Americanism consists in utterly believing in the principles of America and putting them first as above anything that might by chance come into competition with it. And I for my part believe that the American test is a spiritual test. If a man has to make excuses for what he has done as an American I doubt his Americanism. He ought to know at every step of his action that the motive that lies behind what he does is a motive which no American need be ashamed of for a moment. Now we ought to put this test to every man we know. We ought to let it be known that nobody who does not put American first can consort with us. But we ought to set them the example by thinking American thoughts and purposes will stand the test of example anywhere in the world, for they are intended for the betterment of mankind.

"So I have come to say these few words to you today gentlemen for a double purpose; first of all to express my personal interest in you, and second of all to remind you how we must all stand together in one spirit as lovers and servants of America. And that means something more than lovers and servants merely of the United States. You have heard of the Monroe Doctrine gentlemen. You know that we are already spiritual partners with both continents of this hemisphere and that America means something which is bigger even than the United States and that we stand here with the glorious power of this country ready to swing it out into the field of action whenever liberty and independence and political integrity are threatened anywhere in the western hemisphere.

THE FIREMEN

Today Lima welcomes thousands of firemen to the convention of the state volunteers and regulars. The gathering may mean little to some of the citizens, but those who understand the hardships which the fire-fighters face should realize the importance of that individual to his community.

The fireman must be ready to answer at an instant's notice. He must desert his warm bed on the coldest night, facing the blast of winter when the gong sounds the alarm. He must be prepared to risk his life for the mother or child unable to escape the flames, and his career, no matter how heroic, is often unrewarded. He complains little and serves much, and merits a thousandfold the compensation which he receives.

Hats off to the firemen. Like the doctors, they are unappreciated until extreme necessity brings home to us their usefulness. Both of them we call in abject humility, both of them we employ and thank in time of danger, but neither of them do we reward when the peril is past. Their work is hazardous and their courage great, and it is the duty of the city which acts as host to indicate by unparalleled hospitality the appreciation which is due.

FLAG DAY

Tomorrow is Flag day. On June 14, 1777, Betsy Ross turned out the rude forerunner of what is now the great American flag. In the presence of George Washington she completed the lineal ancestor of Old Glory as we know it today.

At first the flag had thirteen stars and thirteen stripes, and the original plan was to multiply the stripes along with the stars as the nation increased in size. When the number of fifteen was found however, the congressional committee decided to limit the multiplication to the field of blue with thirteen stars of white.

Betsy Ross did well her task. Save for traditional history she is unknown, her antecedents and biography being practically unobtainable as far as authentic records are concerned. But she gave the infant nation an emblem symbolical of the ideals of the republic. The stars recall the heavenly guidance to which the revolutionists appealed, the red the blood of martyrs shed for the liberty of their children and the white the purity of the cause which inspired the patriots of 179 years ago.

Those who regard as sentimental all display of emotion should be lined up in public and made to salute the flag which typifies the nation. There are many flag-fetters and there have been thousands more but Old Glory has afforded greater liberty to men individually scattered over a greater area for a longer period of time than any other banner which history records. It is not the silken fold of the emblem which we should consider in our patriotic impulses, but the spirit for which it stands. Many men have longed to die for their native land. The more practical live for her. They are honest with themselves in every dealing with the nation. They do not dodge taxes, evade the assessor, flee from public duties such as service in office, hide from military service or seek to grab as much "pork" as possible from the federal treasury. They never ask their congressmen to graft an appropriation for a massive marble edifice for an undeserving town, nor do they deface public property, misuse public funds or disregard public law.

How many of us really observe and follow the spirit which Flag day should inspire?

CONVENTION ORATORY

It has not been many years since an observing statesman announced, with more or regret than of contempt, that the great national convention no longer produce oratory of the good old-fashioned type. The decline of the stump speaker who uttered solemn truths with bated breath, flashing eye, furrowed brow, clenched hands and others symptoms of sincerity is familiar to all, for since the newspaper has become an extensive institution there is little personal appeal. Voters will not go far to hear what they can read a few hours later.

The necessity for dramatic effect being removed, the public speaker has apparently lost the art of utilizing the "side play" work. Today he relies entirely on words, knowing that his message will be read by a hundred to one by whom it is heard. Thus the use of gesture, expression and intonation are passing away.

Another cause is that the convention delegate is a less susceptible being. He is picked because of his unswerving allegiance to a cause which he will never desert. The recent Republican convention will serve as an example. The delegates from all parts of the Middle West were so carefully selected that only the so-called old guard could handle the men in question. When a Roosevelt demonstration was attempted the galleries, paid to cheer, went mad, but the men with a vote stumped to their chairs, apparently bored by the noise.

Warren G. Harding, reputed to be the best campaign orator in the Republican party, was a flat failure. As keynote addresses go his was a miserable attempt to produce. Instead of impassioned exhortations to do this or that, he emitted only meaningless phrases devoid of import, relying on flattery and euphony to supplant the missing substance.

Let us hope that the Democratic convention at St. Louis will produce something more. It should, for the Democratic party has something to extol in the gathering which opens Wednesday. On the list of speakers is the genial senator from Kentucky, Ollie M. James, who never fails to "come clean" with the real article. In the name of the old-time regime, may the meeting locate a few of the orators such as our fathers heard and applauded.

Wouldn't it be nice if all the cash blown in by delegates to national conventions, spent for beverages, souvenirs, mementos and junk, as well as the campaign contributions of great corporations, would be applied to relieving the suffering of the poor? There would be more votes for the party that started that kind of a movement, than if the old-time usage prevailed.

There was a day when a man could get away with a white shirt. Today he will have to have a complete stock of green, purple, blue, tropic, pink and orange to keep up to the minute.

Cincinnati will miss the late John Roll McLean this summer. Any man who could provide ice for the slums in dog days could live down a defeat for gubernatorial honors.

Now that the Bull Moose party is dead Colonel Roosevelt will have more time to discover birds which were known to the biologists of his grandfather's day.

Tomorrow the Democrats convene in St. Louis. It is a safe bet that any delegate demanding peace at any price will get trouble for nothing.

The candidate who shakes hands the most effusively is rarely the most sincere about it.

GOOD EVENING. Leap year hasn't increased the crop of June brides perceptibly.

NEW NOTES MOVIELAND

By DAISY DEAND

A MERE SLIP of a lass, a wholesome, sprightly, modest, little wood violet! How else can one typify Anita Stewart? She has charm, she has beauty. She has poise and her wide range and control of delicate emotions have registered her personality indelibly, wherever the productions are screened, in which she is starred.

It was while she was attending high school, and her rare brilliance and personal beauty were being utilized by many of the New York artists, that her brother-in-law, Ralph Ince, the famous star and director, saw in her the elements so necessary for a screen personality.

For six months or more she took small unimportant parts as maids and learned all the technical rudiments from the ground up. Her rise since then has been meteoric and she stands today among the first three of the most popular stars in the firmament of America's photoplay actresses.

"The Silent Battle"

With Demon Ham.

Director Jack Conway, who was recently added to the Universal directing forces, has completed his first picture "The Silent Battle" in five reels. This stars J. Warren Kerrigan as a young man who makes a successful fight against an inherent appetite for alcohol. Opposite Kerrigan is Lois Wilson, and other principals are Maude George, Harry Carter Ray Hamford, Laura Oakley, and Jack Connelly. Many of the scenes represent an atmosphere of the northern woods, and the delicate situation of a young man and woman lost in the woods together for a week, is handled in a very capable manner.

Violet Mercereau who "welched" on her agreement to wed Roy Fernandez, winner of the Universal's "Handsome Man" contest because he wasn't "her ideal dark man," is appearing in a picture of strong dramatic theme entitled "The Power of Virtue." This is from the pen of Anita Stewart.

Her greatest triumph will come this summer, when she will play leads opposite E. H. Sothern in a series of multiple-reel Vitaphone plays.

Mrs. Catherine Carr, writer of extraordinary film plays, and is a five-reeler.

The ambition of Beverly Bayne is being realized in playing Juliet. Ever since Metro announced the filming of "Romeo and Juliet" as one of the coming Bushman and Bayne possibilities Mrs. Bayne has assiduously applied herself to the study of this great play and has learned Juliet's lines word for word.

The Searchlight

LARGEST TUNNEL IN AMERICA.

The tunnel passing through the Selkirk mountains in British Columbia has been excavated by a unique method which greatly shortened the time consumed. The new method is known as the "pioneer" heading or bore. This bore was made nearly parallel with the line of the main tunnel. Cross cuts made from it to the main tunnel at intervals of 1500 feet, permitted driving the main tunnel from a number of headways instead of from the two ends as is the usual method. This tunnel is expected to be complete in September. It is 26,400 feet long, and will cost about $12,000,000. It will be the longest tunnel in America.

HEALTHHINTS

Sleep is the Best Aid to Health. Need 8 Hours.

Since our civilized form of life imposes upon us many hazards of health with which otherwise we would not have to contend, it is worth while to try to establish what is the greatest single offset to such hazards—in other words, the greatest factor in maintaining our general health. There are air, nourishment, cleanliness, happiness, work, rest and sleep. There are others, but these are the most important. To the average individual there is good reason to believe that a proper amount of sleep is the chief health conservator. Authorities on health and hygiene point out more and more the need of securing at least eight consecutive hours of sleep. Where this cannot be done as a routine, day after day, they advise that the proper amount of sleep be made up some time during the 24 hours. The universal practice of this policy no doubt would do more than any other single factor to promote health and prevent disease. Read Times want column.

EXPERTS TELL WHY WE SHOULD ADOPT BUG DIET

Government Scientists Aver
Soup Made From Grubs is Good.

OFFICIALS TRY SOME Declare Refusal to Eat Insects, is Inconsistent and Ridiculous.

By Frederic J. Haskin.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.—Not long ago Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, which is that branch of the department of agriculture devoted to the study of insects, caused to be dug up on the department grounds a number of big, fat, white grubs, or garden slugs of the sort you frequently turn up when digging for bait. These are not intended for bait, however. Dr. Howard turned them over to another government scientist, Dr. Langworthy who wears the title of chief of the bureau of home economics, and knows more about cooking than anybody else in Washington. Dr. Langworthy presented the worms to his most skillful chef, who made of them a rich broth, thickened with chopped lettuce leaves and seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika. In this unusual form the grubs returned to the initiator of the enterprise, Dr. Howard, who consumed a cup of the worm soup with great gusto and proclaimed it delicious. One of his assistants courageously backed the chief, and he, too, said the soup was good. There was no argument.

These conservative scientists were not merely indulging an exotic taste for an insectivorous diet. Neither of them had ever knowingly consumed any insects before. But they shared a serious scientific conviction that insects are an excellent human food, which is being almost entirely neglected by civilized man; and they wished at once to put their beliefs to the test, and to give a practical demonstration of the edibility of bugs.

The argument in favor of eating insects is literally unanswerable. Likewise the prejudice among most civilized peoples against eating insects is almost ineradicable. So the situation is a deadlock. A sufficient number of exalted examples, like that of Dr. Howard, might suffice to break it. If New York society, for example, would take up cockchafer on toast and grasshopper omelette, there is little doubt but what these dishes would come into general favor. An administration really desirous of lowering the cost of living might do much by having some of the more savory native insects served at the White House table. Dr. Howard has made a beginning. Let who so has the courage follow him.

The matter is of far more moment than appears at a glance. The population of the earth is increasing at a great rate, and everywhere food is becoming more difficult to obtain. Especially is this true of animal food. Red meat, fish, shellfish, and the crustacea are all becoming scarce. The last of these, the crustacea, including the lobsters, shrimps and crabs, are first cousins to the insects, having the same sort of flesh and structure. Yet the lobster soars to unheard of prices and is threatened with extinction, while his near relative, the June Bug, has escaped all consideration as an article of diet.

Our refusal to eat insects is inconsistent, squeamish and ridiculous—that is apparent. That is not the end of the matter, however. It may be stated with almost literal truth that sooner or later we will have to eat the insects in self defense. Modern life on this planet is a battle between man and the insects—and the latter are in every physical respect better fitted to survive. All other forms of life have been subjugated by man so far as he has come in contact with them. Only the insect remains in almost undiminished numbers, and continues to menace the life and well-being of the human race. Grasshoppers descend upon our crops and leave whole states and nations to famine. Several Central American republics are now in a starving condition as a result of these pests. The boll-weevil, creeping southward, threatens the life of a great industry. Moths devour the shade trees of whole cities. House-flies take thousands of lives by acting as disease carriers, and the mosquito laden with yellow fever and malaria, kills more men than any wild animal that ever inhabited the earth.

So modern life is in a very real sense a desperate struggle between man and the insects. Some scientists believe that it is the insects who will survive, and that they will own the earth long after every other form of life has perished. Dr. Howard believes that man will ultimately overcome the insects by reason of his superior intelligence; and the valiant battle which his department is waging against the insect enemies of American agriculture is an impressive demonstration of his theory. But whether we are to con-struggle is really desperate, and it promises to become more so as man extends his dominion over the tropics, which are the most productive part of the earth, and have so far been kept in a state of wilderness largely by the insects who carry death to every intruder.

Now in this struggle for existence, it is evident that our enemies have one great advantage over us in that they live upon the spoils of war, while we do not. A pest of grasshoppers descends upon Kansas, and lays waste the country. The farmers go forth with poison and traps to destroy them. There is heavy loss on both sides. But the grasshoppers live upon the substance of the farmers, while every cent which the farmer spends in destroying the insects is a complete loss. Now just suppose that roasted and salted grasshopper was a staple food with civilized man as it is in North Africa. Corporations would pay the farmers large sums for the grasshopper rights of their lands. The insects would be gathered by the ton in huge machines designed for the purpose, and shipped to all parts of the world. The crops would be saved and the farmers would make a neat royalty to boot.

This sounds a bit Utopian; yet something very like it is being done in parts of Europe, where the cockchafer is very abundant. Children are there employed to gather the insects which are fed to the pigs. A recent traveler in Germany reports that frequently the peasant children will stop in this work to pull the legs and wings off one of the luckless bugs and chew up his thorax and abdomen with great relish just as a boy employed to pick cherries will flick one now and then. With the young generation thus learning the food value of insects, and with Europe threatened by a shortage of food, there is reason to believe that insects may become a staple before long.

Insects have been used as food by primitive and savage peoples since very early times, and in some instances they have been used by the civilized. Thus Dr. Howard had an excellent precedent for his worm dinner if Aristotle is to be relied upon; for that writer records that the Cicada was a favorite food of the most cultured ancient Greeks, both in the larval stage and when fully developed. The white grub is simply the larva of the American Cicada or June Bug. This larva is a very rich food consisting largely of a very delicate fat. Most mature insects, on the other hand, consist in an outer casing made of a hard substance called chitin, which contains no nutritive element, and of muscle, which is white, lean and striated and resembles the flesh of lobsters and shrimps. This muscle is the edible part, and analysis would doubtless reveal that it is an excellent proteid.

The Chinese and Japanese are about the only modern civilized peoples that eat insects. The Chinese are fond of the chrysalis of the silk worm, after the silk has been removed and also regard as a delicacy a certain species of hawk moth. Locusts are the most widely eaten insects. The Arabs are fond of them, and they are brought to Fez in wagon loads. In some parts of Japan they are eaten candied. The Australian bushman finds them a delicacy, and so do the Moors. The locust is the common grasshopper. If you should desire to prepare a dish of these ancient insects, here is a recipe which has been tried by time and various races and found good.

Remove the legs and wings from the insects. Boil them for half an hour; then drain, sprinkle with salt, pepper and vinegar, and fry in butter. The result tastes like a very delicate omelette, according to reliable reports.

The Hottentots eat white ants both cooked and raw. The favorite way to prepare them is to roast them over a slow fire, like coffee. In parts of Sweden, according to an old writer, ants are distilled along with grain to make some of the poorer grades of brandy. Both the Hottentots and some African tribes eat lice, gathering a plentiful crop from their own cranial preserves.

Spiders are said to be excellent eating, although too scarce to become popular. Anna Maria Schurman, a woman famous a century ago in Europe, was very fond of them, and would pick them up while walking in her garden, crack the tough outer integument like the shell of a nut, and then eat the contents with relish. Lalande, the famous French astronomer, was also fond of eating spiders. Rosel tells of a German who liked to gather them by the handful and spread them on his bread and butter like jam. He declared that they were an excellent laxative. Humboldt records having seen Indian children in South America pull centipedes 18 inches long out of the earth and eagerly devour them.

Dr. Howard's adventure with the Purée au Worms was not the first time insects have been eaten in this country. When Kansas and Colorado were devastated by grasshoppers in 1874, one of the state entomologists induced the owner of a large restaurant in St. Louis to make a thick soup or bisque out of grasshoppers. This was served under a French name to several hundred diners, and was eaten with apparent pleasure and without unfavorable comment.

Scientists have urged the eating of insects for a long time. Half a century ago an Englishman wrote a book on the subject, and added an appendix containing a number of insectivorous menus, in which were such dishes as wasp grubs fried in the comb, new carps with wireworm sauce, stag beetle larva on toast, and cauliflower garnished with caterpillars.

These things sound all right, per-some reason they fail to arouse enthusiasm.

Prejudice is always stronger than logic, and it will probably take much time and experiment to overcome the prejudice of civilized man against insect food.

How America's largest cigarette manufacturer has accomplished "the Impossible" by producing a MILD cigarette that SATISFIES. It is the CHESTERFIELD Cigarette : : : : : : : :

ALMOST anybody can make a cup of coffee. But there are said to be not over a half-dozen restaurants in the United States where they know how to make it right.

Similarly, almost anyone can make a cigarette. Just roll up some tobacco in a piece of pure paper—and there you are.

There are, perhaps, over 800 brands of cigarettes sold in this country today. But not one of them does what Chesterfields do—for Chesterfields are MILD; and yet they SATISFY.

Some cigarettes may be mild, but they don't satisfy. Only one cigarette does BOTH—Chesterfield!

This truly unique cigarette has all of that refreshing taste-delicacy (or mildness) which any good cigarette must have. Yet, without sacrificing any of this delightful mildness, Chesterfields go one step further—they do more than merely "please your taste"—they let you know you've been smoking. They satisfy!

And yet they're mild!

A Step Forward
in Cigarette-Making

WE are proud to be the firm that has brought about this important new development in cigarette enjoyment—for that is exactly what the Chesterfield blend is.

This cigarette is an outgrowth of long, earnest effort on the part of this, the largest cigarette manufacturing concern in the United States.

The mild, yet satisfying Chesterfield blend is not the result of happy chance. It is one of the results of our many years of cigarette experience—of the heavy volume of our purchases of cigarette tobacco—of the prestige and advantage these enormous purchases give us in securing the choicest leaf from the tobacco fields of the world.

Chesterfields are an achievement.

A New Thing
for a Cigarette to Do

CHESTERFIELDS do the one thing you have always wished a cigarette would do—they satisfy!

Smoke them and we believe you will find that ordinary cigarettes seem by comparison almost flat.

Give Chesterfields (20 for 10 cents) a trial. We believe you will be glad to learn what they can teach you about cigarette enjoyment.

You have been reading here some rather unusual, almost daring, statements about a cigarette. If Chesterfields were an untried cigarette—if we had not been observing their behavior in other cities—if we did not KNOW that they make good with smokers, we could not afford to make these statements to you over our signature.

But these statements, strong as they are, can mean little or nothing to you until you have actually smoked your first Chesterfield.

You will find that your own dealer has Chesterfields waiting for you.

SILENCE

SOMEONE said "The hours of silence chiefly make us all" and Arthur Christopher Benson said "Society is good for most of us; but solitude is equally good, as a tonic medicine, granted that sociability is accepted as a factor in our life." John Henry Jowett said "It matters infinitely what we think about life, for what we think of life we shall surely make it." And do you remember in George Eliot's Daniel Deronda "I said, let my body dwell in poverty, and my hands be as the hands of a toiler; but let my soul be as the temple of remembrance where the treasures of knowledge enter and the inner sanctuary is hope?"

I have known persons who never wanted to be alone, who thought that the worst thing they would have to do would be to spend a whole day or perhaps a half day alone, by themselves. I have always had a great amount of pity for those persons, because they never have had the opportunity to become acquainted with themselves or because they were afraid to take the opportunity. One can't spend several hours alone with one's self, you know, without thinking something, and I suppose if one isn't in the habit of doing such a thing it would be somewhat annoying. There is no one who can have the flower of the soul who does not give up a certain amount of his time to silence, to meditation. All ambitions, all inspirations, come from our hours of silence. Did you ever see a person in any way worth while who rushed from one thing to another, filling up time with things that call for no responsibility, or thought?

No one accomplishes anything without dreams, air castles, and the man or woman without either is worth very little, and accomplishes less. It has been said to know a man thoroughly you must examine his air castles. And only in the silent communication of his thoughts are his air castles builded.

Our Rural Reporter says the present administration has been productive, in that most of us have more bills than usual.

Cheer Up, DEARS — We will have the opportunity tomorrow afternoon to prove the fallacy of Bobbie Burns' statement "O was some power the giftie gie us."

MARRYING A BUTTERFLY
By MRS. EVA LEONARD Y

In Which a Stormy Evening Has a More or Less Pleasant Ending.

"E"THEL. I saw the maid scraping butter off the plates into the garbage. Don't you ever watch her to see she does not waste? You might do at least that much to cut down expenses," grumbled Ralph Gordon as he sat smoking in the dining room. The maid had just gone out with a tray.

"She asked me what to do with the butter left on the plates, but I did not see what it could be used for. Why do you take more on your plate than you can use?" Ethel was watering the ferns in the bay window.

"Mother always used the butter in cooking. We have bread and butter plates and spreaders. I do not think the butter is badly contaminated. Our butter bill is more than it used to be at home with a family of five," continued Ralph discontentedly.

"I have noticed that Maggie uses more than Minnie did, but I supposed she knew what it would take to make the food good. She certainly is a good cook."

"If the mistress of the home knows nothing of economy, and cares even less, I suppose one must not expect the maid to trouble herself about keeping expenses down," interrupted Ralph.

Ethel set the watering pot down on the window seat with a despairing gesture.

"Ralph Gordon, have you begun on my extravagance again?" she asked desperately. "Because if you have I will run away before I will listen to you."

"You will not need to, I'll go myself," he replied grimly, rising and going into the hall for his hat. Once on the street alone, Ralph took himself violently to task. He had vowed that he never would use that tone when speaking to his wife again and he had used it. He had felt the faultfinding tone coming; had said, "Remember marriage is largely a matter of the right tone." Then he had forthwith used the wrong one. His head ached and the cool night air was grateful to it. His resentment against his wife for her utter lack of practical ability flamed up as he walked along and he thought of all the ways in which his temper was tried. "And she doesn't care; she positively doesn't care how hard she makes it for me. She seems to think marriage brings no responsibilities." It was inexcusable and he had a just right to be indignant.

Ralph walked rapidly for an hour or more from one end to the other of the sleepy little town. When he reached his own door he had conquered his irritation, but his head ached and a dark uncertainty brooded over the future. As he opened the door Ethel came running to meet him and throwing her arms around his neck said, half sobbing:

"Oh, where have you been? I have been so lonesome."

"I have a bad headache and thought a walk would do it good," he answered, laying his cheek on her golden hair. "I must go to bed, for tomorrow is a hard day for me."

She fluttered about him in sympathetic trouble and when he had lain down, stole to his side and laid a compress on his hot temples. It felt cool and grateful. The pessimism about marriage lifted. He determined to succeed in marriage. The light was turned off for his comfort, and he could hear Ethel softly stealing about the room getting ready for bed. Finally she bent over him, a vague whiteness in the gloom, and kissed him good night. Marriage seemed good after all.

Talks Daily By Mary Pickford

GRANDMOTHER VISITS STUDIO
Copyright 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

TODAY I am wondering if my readers would enjoy taking a little sunny afternoon vacation trip to a studio on Long Island. The idea was suggested to me after showing the inner workings of motion picture activities to two dear little old grandmothers from California.

We who work daily in these studios forget it might be of interest to others, especially those who live miles away from the studio towns. The old ladies were trembling with excitement when I met them, and it was a beautiful ride through the country to the studio. We arrived there just in time to join several automobiles filled with the painted actors and actresses, and followed in their wake to the selected location.

After a twenty-minute ride, we stopped at one of the narrow streets in the tenement district. As soon as the curious-eyed children saw the camera, the cry "Movies!" echoed through the neighborhood and the result was that in five minutes the traffic had stopped. Men, women and children mobbed around us, and out of every window poked the animated heads of those who hurried forth their opinions in noisy, jibbering language.

In their excitement, they leaned so far out that one of the old ladies became very much alarmed.

"Six stories is a long way to fall," she confided in my ear.

In spite of the fact that I have been in pictures so many years, when I am with those who are thrilled for the first time at our painted antics I assimilate their mood and become just as interested as they. Even as the old ladies held their breath, so did I when the villain crouched beside the tenement door, waiting to spring upon the heroine, who came stealthily out of the other.

The act was so realistic that one of my guests uttered a little squeal when the poor little yellow-curlied victim was so roughly handled, but the cry melted into a sigh of satisfaction when the hero, dressed as a typical Western cowboy, came to the rescue.

"If there isn't one of our boys," came simultaneously from the lips of these western ladies whose voices quivered with a quite possessive degree of pride.

Several little intimate scenes were taken at this location, and then the story called for a change of costume.

"For land's sake!" exclaimed one of my guests, "where will they find a dressingroom in such a neighborhood as this?"

I laughed at this and pointed over to the machine.

"Look! See the storm curtains going up? There is the emergency dressing room!"

They were both shocked and amused by the inquisitive mobs who would have given much to peek behind those curtains!

Several street scenes were taken here and a few had to be repeated on account of a gust of wind blowing across the camera, which, the camera man explained to them, would spoil the clearness of the film.

Enough of exterior scenes, so we returned to the studio, where a great treat was in store for us, as the leading role was taken by America's greatest comedian, Nat Goodwin. Grandmother Kate told me she had seen him from the beginning of his career, and to her it was a thrilling experience to stand back of the camera and watch the scene that was to be perpetuated in the movies.

He was playing the role of a severe parent, and there he stood in a cowboy outfit, holding in his arms the bit of humanity who always reconciles. His lines were just as tender and his acting just as powerful as when he thrilled his audiences across the footlight with his wit and pathos.

After rehearsing several times, the directors asked the few onlookers to be quiet, and, at the signal lights, my interested friends could not suppress a bit of surprise at the ghastly, unnatural, greenish-gray color which it gave the actors and actresses.

Several days later we were invited by the same director to visit the studio and see the finished picture projected in the dark room. It was so much fun to hear the exclamations of my guests.

"To think we have seen Nat Goodwin in the movies and can say we were there when some of the scenes were taken! What an interesting story this will be to tell the home folks!"

"Yes, a story that doesn't have to be exaggerated to make good telling," concluded Grandmother Minn.

WELLS-FARGO CO. HAS PENSION PLAN

The Wells-Fargo Express company has instituted a new benefit and pension plan. The new system went into effect June 1. It is not the first pension provision established by the company. The Wells-Fargo has been retiring its older men on pensions for more than a quarter of a century.

A feature of the new plan is a disability clause, which applies to any established worker in the company's ranks who may be stricken by illness or by accident. This clause will apply to any salaried employee who has been in the service six months or longer.

When incapacitated for work by accident or sickness while not on duty, such employee may be allowed pay for the period of the enforced absence. If the accident should occur while he is on duty, the compensation granted is larger.

Another feature of the new pension plan is the one which provides for the continuance of a man's salary to his beneficiaries for a season after his death.

Pictures of Crowds This Week Also to be Shown.

To further aid their gymnasium cause, the Business Woman's club will hold movie performances at the Lyric theatre on North Main street on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The scenes will largely be laid in Lima.

Any person may be caught as they are in the act of walking down the street and when the pictures are shown next week, they are expected to reveal some surprises.

Amusements

THE FAUROT PICTURES.

"Pasquale", the new Paramount picture at the Faurot, serves to again introduce the famous character actor, George Beban, whose appearances in "An Alien" were so favorably received by picturegoers. Artistic and realistic, "Pasquale" depended much upon these qualities for its successful picturization. With numerous shades from the sublimely pathetic to the strikingly spectacular, the successful scenes have all been handled in a most capable fashion. The realistic home-like touches introduced by the animals, a horse and rooster, have seldom been excelled. The story, which deals with the life of two Italians in America, one a wealthy banker and the other a pedlar, develops along natural lines. The jump from America to Europe and back again is very well handled and leaves little break in the continuity of the story.

The story well serves its purpose as a background for Mr. Beban's artistic portrayal of the remarkable Italian trader, Pasquale. All the trite, human incidents which would tend to make this character realistic and sympathetic have been introduced. The character itself is intensely sympathetic and touches of nature enhanced with judicious photography have served to make a most pathetic character study. In the picturization after the two Italians have left this country to go to war, there are some remarkable battle scenes shown. War and its gruesomeness is present, yet in the strife of the trenches the kind-hearted Pasquale cannot find courage enough to kill a man, but boots him out of the trench instead. There are also some marvelous scenes of the Zeppelin raids, with shells bursting in the air above the visitors. Broken and wounded, these men and their compatriots return home to find what were once happy homes wrecks. Pasquale, however, wins the girl he once loved after an automobile wreck has killed her husband, and he also acts as the medium for his friend, Martinelli, who obtains happiness with his wife once more.

The automobile wreck has been remarkably well done and it is realistic in every detail. In fact, all through the picture the realism has not suffered in the least from lack of careful detailing. Everything has been done most accurately to portray the native Italian life.

In support of Mr. Beban is Helen Eddy as Marguerita, the little Italian girl. She is most sincere in her portrayal and her acting carries weight, the same qualities of pathos and sympathy that Mr. Beban's does. Page Peters, Myrtle Stedman, Jack Nelson, and Niel de Brullier are all very well cast and their performances are effective as well as convincing.

The photography throughout the picture is of the highest quality.

The program also contains new Burton Holmes Travel pictures, in which the traveler takes you on a cruise through the Philippines in a government scout boat, and pictures in motion of prominent Lima localities, including excellent views of our fire department in action.

STAR THEATRE.

Patrons of the Star theatre are all rejoicing over the reestablishment of Universal pictures at that theatre, for that concern, beyond all doubt, is producing the best mixed program of photoplays that is to be seen upon the screen. Today, for instance, there is a two-reel L-KO comedy, "How Stars are Made"; an imp comedy, "Her Wonderful Secret"; and a gripping Rex drama, "When the Wolf Howls", with the beautiful and accomplished favorite, Cleo Madison, in the leading role. As an added feature for our convention visitors motion pictures of Lima are shown, views of the fire department in action among the number.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF GRAND ARMY

Great Outpouring of Veterans
Expected at Marion.

ENCAMPMENT JUNE 12 TO 15

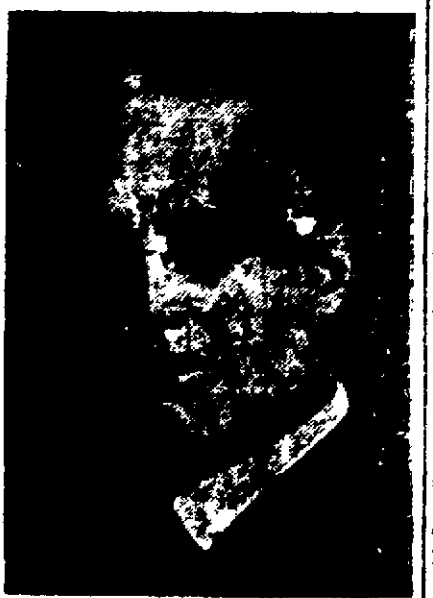

Addresses by Notables, Parades and Music Among the Numbers on the Program—Large Sum Subscribed For the Entertainment of Visitors. Reservations Should Be Made at the Earliest Possible Moment.

For a score of years or more the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic have given no little thought to the time when their Golden Jubilee would roll around, and have speculated as to whether the Grim Reaper would spare them until that time.

From all indications, the greatest outpouring of the veterans of the Civil War in the history of the department of Ohio will take place at Marion, O. June 12, 13, 14 and 15, when the elaborate plans for the golden anniversary will materialize in the most interesting program ever witnessed at a Grand Army encampment. The Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans, Ladies of the G. A. R. and Daughters of Veterans will be here in full force. Reservations for 8,000 visitors have been made by the local committee, and requests for reservations are coming in on every mail. The local committee this week sent out a call, urging everyone who expects to come to the encampment to make reservations at the earliest possible moment, through a communication to the secretary of the Marion committee. The general public is assured in advance that all who come will be taken care of, because they are familiar with the hospitality of Marion and they know rades and more than the customary number of bands. Two features on the program which are not common to such encampments are the parade of the Women's Relief Corps and the ceremony known as "Salute to the Colors." On the evening of Tuesday, the 13th, there will be a civic and preparedness parade, in which members of the National Guard from nearby cities will participate.

The programs for the several meetings carry the names of the leading Grand Army men, not only in Ohio, but in the nation, including that of National Commander Elias R. Newfort. United States Senator Warren G. Harding, whose home is Marion.

Particular attention is being given by the Marion committee to the decorations of the city, and Marion will be bedecked in city gala attire as is only possible, as it were, for an occasion of this kind.

770,000 Co-operators

Great Volunteer Army Working With
Department of Agriculture for Advancement of Farming.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—June 13.

Nearly 770,000 persons, largely successful farmers, are now aiding the U. S. department of agriculture by furnishing information, demonstrating the local usefulness of new methods, testing out theories, experimenting and reporting on conditions in their districts—by helping, in short, in almost every conceivable way to increase the knowledge of the department and to place that knowledge at the service of the people. This army of volunteers receives no pay from the government.

Many of these co-operators are actuated solely by a wish to be of service to their neighbors. Others take part in this work because of their own keen interest in testing new methods, or in trying out for themselves crops either new to their own sections or imported from foreign countries through the department's plant explorers.

It is estimated that at least one farm out of every twenty is working in some way with the department of agriculture and thus has become a center of advanced agricultural information for its community. In addition to the farmers who work directly with the department of agriculture, there are thousands of others who render a similar valuable service to the scientists and field workers of the state agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

With such a large number of farmers willing to work with the department and the colleges and test out their recommendations, it is clear that a significant change has taken place from the day when the average farmer was decidedly skeptical about scientific agriculture and slow or unwilling to give attention to the recommendations of what many used to designate as "book farmers."

The wide use made by the department of this large number of practical farmers indicates clearly how erroneous was the once prevalent idea that agricultural scientists held themselves aloof and that the department of agriculture consisted mainly of college-trained men, who were far more at home in their offices or laboratories than on actual farms. As a matter of fact, the scientific agriculturist today does not attempt to evolve theories in the seclusion of a government building. It is true he may develop ideas in his laboratory, but before he is ready to advise farmers to adopt them he calls on a large number of successful practical farmers to give these ideas an independent practical test on some of their own acres. In many other cases the scientist goes to the farmer both for his theory and practice. He studies and analyzes the practice of hundreds of thousands of successful farmers in an endeavor to find the scientific basis or underlying principle of farming methods which have, through long years of experience, been found to be most successful for their farms and neighborhoods. Frequently the scientist finds in one community certain farmers who are successful and others who are unsuccessful. He searches for the reasons for the success and failure of the two groups, and then endeavors to make clear to the successful ones the scientific reason for their success and to develop sound rules which will enable the unsuccessful to apply to their own farms the methods employed by their prosperous neighbors. In many cases, therefore, the scientist's recommendation represents the consensus of opinion of a large number of successful grain growers, truck raisers, dairymen, or other classes of farm managers.

Of the 770,000 co-operators the great majority are men who farm for a living. A wide variety of other occupations is represented in the list, however, from the masters of merchant vessels who take meteorological observations for the weather bureau to the college presidents who aid in the educational extension work of the department or the pig club boys who supply their neighbors with object lessons in the profitable raising of hogs. In a general way the co-operators may be divided into three classes: those who furnish the department with specific information acquired in the course of their regular occupations; those who demonstrate in actual practice the agricultural methods recommended by the department; and those who volunteer to perform with new crops and new methods the experiments which furnish science with the necessary data for practical recommendation.

Prominent in the first class are the 158,600 crop correspondents who make possible the government estimates of crop production and values. Trained experts in the bureau of crop estimates take the reports of these men and by careful comparison and averaging arrive at a knowledge of actual conditions throughout the country which could not be obtained in any other way. The information thus secured and published by the government is an invaluable guide to the farmers and business men of the country and an effective obstacle to reckless speculation and the manipulation of prices. Without such a system the knowledge possessed by any one individual would necessarily be limited to local conditions and it is no longer local but national and worldwide conditions that regulate business. This fact is occasionally overlooked by persons who are surprised to find that a short crop in their own section may be accompanied by low prices and are in consequence inclined to question the accuracy of the government estimates.

A corresponding service is rendered the weather bureau by its corps of observers. The reports from sea captains and mates have already been mentioned. In addition there are 4,560 observers who report temperature and rainfall regularly, 2,770 who display or disseminate forecasts and warnings, and 1,300 who report weekly during the crop growing season upon the effect of weather conditions.

In its researches and investigations the department is also in great measure dependent upon reports from co-operators. Fifteen thousand railroad station agents, for example, have been instructed by railroad officials to furnish the office of markets and rural organization with postcard reports of shipments of perishable crops which are used in the market news service of the office. This service was inaugurated last year to aid dealers and producers in the economical and efficient distribution and marketing of such crops as strawberries, cantaloupes, early onions, peaches, etc. Tariffs and other data are also supplied by the railroads, the cotton exchanges and individual firms send firms send quotations, samples and other information; 400 cold storage plants report monthly on their holdings of apples; 500 millers, grain dealers, Chambers of Commerce, etc., furnish the Bureau of Plant Industry with data in connection with the work of grain standardization, and 1,200 creameries and cheese factories report to the Bureau of Animal Industry.

These, of course, are only a few instances out of many. They serve to show, however, the ways in which the department keeps in touch with practical business conditions and is assisted by the same men whom it is working to assist.

In the second class of co-operators are the thousands of farmers who, under the supervision of department specialists are working out on their own farms the methods recommended by scientific agriculture; the boys and girls of the pig, poultry, corn and canning clubs who are demonstrating the neglected possibilities of profit in these fields; the women who have adopted for their own benefit and as a means of instructing their neighbors, improved methods in housekeeping; the 80,946 members of the farm bureaus and county associations which support county agents in the northern and western states; nearly 10,000 leaders in club work for community welfare, and the state officials who aid in extension work, in the distribution of animal serums and vaccine and in other ways.

This demonstration work is of the utmost importance in the spread of sound agriculture. It is almost impossible to name the many forms in which it is being carried on, but one instance of its effect in Alabama is illuminating. A few years ago crimson clover was an unknown crop in that state. The department decided after considerable study that it was one of the most suitable legumes for the section and determined to introduce it. Ten farmers each in 10 counties agreed to plant one acre as an experiment. Two years later there were 250,000 acres in crimson clover in Alabama. The object lesson had had its effect.

Another important demonstration in progress at the present time is concerned with cultural methods for sugar beets. In this 1,000 farmers are taking part. Another thousand in the arid areas of the Great Plains are planting trees to make shelter-belts as recommended by the department and are making their farms a meeting place for their neighbors. In the cotton belt 80 farmers are demonstrating the advantages of superior varieties and improved cultural methods and 50 in South Carolina and Alabama are showing how to breed wilt-resistant cotton and are producing for sale seed of varieties developed by the department.

The third way in which farmers are actively co-operating with the department is in the conduct of experiments. These are as varied as the demonstrations. One man, for example, reports regularly on his progress in breeding ostriches while more than 11,000 are growing the plants which the department introduces from foreign countries. Sixty farmers are now furnishing the land and labor for experiments in corn improvement and 30 are aiding the tobacco work of the department in the same way. Seed corn furnished by the department is being tested by 600 farmers who, to a certain extent, are also demonstrating the varieties they test.

Without the assistance which it received in these and similar ways the department of agriculture could not do the work it does. The fact that hundreds of thousands of practical farmers and business men find it worth while to devote time to the department's undertakings indicates that they believe them vital to their own affairs.

Officers of the Ohio Firemen's Protective and Lake Erie Firemen's associations except the advance guard of these two organizations to arrive in Lima tonight in preparation for the opening sessions tomorrow. With addition of these two organizations it is predicted that the total number of visitors from out of the city will be more than 1,000.

In honor of the occasion the newly painted Central fire station has been decorated and practically turned over to the visitors. Since the installation of the electric piano on the first floor of the building it resembles a dance hall rather than the abode of firemen and fire apparatus.

All of the volunteer fire-fighting organizations connected with the local industrial plants are rapidly completing plans for their part in the big procession of Volunteer Firemen, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Locomotive organization which is composed of 50 members will be fitted out with white caps and shirts and black ties. The East Iron and Gramm-Bernstein companies will also be represented by their volunteer corps of firemen. The program for the remaining days of the convention is as follows:

STOMACH GETS THE BLAME, BUT THE LIVER IS THE CAUSE

A Wineglass of Tollo Water Will Make the Liver Act Freely and Relieve Your Stomach in Thirty Minutes.

Most cases of stomach trouble are caused by a clogged liver. It does no good to dose the stomach with drugs when the real cause is not removed.

When the bile tubes of the liver are clogged the bile is forced back into the stomach and even into the blood, causing stomach trouble, gas, heartburn, headaches, coated tongue, salivary complexion.

An occasional Tollo Water liver bath will remove all these symptoms in thirty minutes. It will clean out the bile tubes, flush the waste out of your system and give your stomach a fresh, clean start.

Tollo Water is found at Dawson Springs, a famous Kentucky health resort, and has the property of dissolving the obstructions in the bile tubes and stimulating the action of the liver and bowels.

Clean your liver tomorrow with a Tollo Water liver bath. It will remove all waste matter and you will be surprised and pleased at its quick results. Your stomach trouble will disappear and you will be able to eat what you like and enjoy it.

Get a 15-cent bottle from your druggist. Take a little before breakfast in a glass of drinking water. In thirty minutes it will make you feel better than you have in weeks.

Reports persisted that certain Carranza officers have agreed not to interfere with the Mexican General De La Rosa in his threatened attack border communities. In this connection was cited the report that one of the bandits killed after the Sunday raid had been identified as Lieutenant Colonel Villareal, a Carranza officer. Even civil authorities of northern Mexican states are said to be relaxing their strict allegiance to the Carranza government and issuing orders independent of the Mexico City officials.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE

The Western Ohio Railway will on June 16th, 1916, make change in the time of the Lima-Cleveland Limited which has been leaving Lima at 2:15 P. M., and arriving at Cleveland at 7:50 P. M.

The car will then leave Lima at 1:20 P. M., and will make the run to Cleveland in five hours, arriving there at 6:20 P. M. which will now assure connection with the Cleveland and Buffalo Boat Line for Buffalo which leaves Cleveland at 8:00 P. M. each night.

This change shortens the running time 35 minutes and is the only through route to Cleveland from Lima without change of cars.

The morning car to Cleveland will run on the same schedule leaving Lima at 6:00 A. M. and arriving at Cleveland at 11:50 A. M.

Remember the change of time leaving at 1:20 P. M. instead of 2:15 P. M.

that the people of Marion are trained to the entertainment of large public bodies.

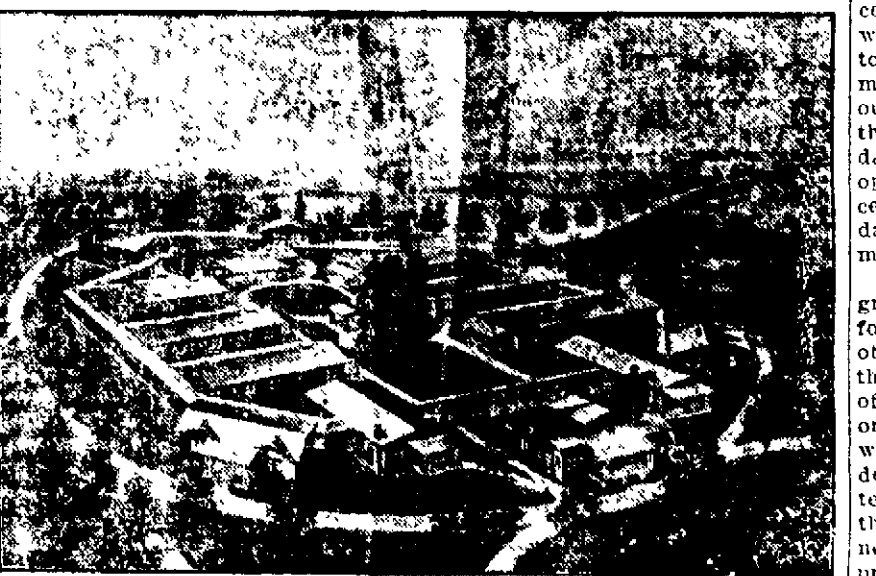

Since the first of January, the Marion committee has been preparing the program for the Golden Jubilee.

Although the expectation is that the number of people attending the Marion encampment will exceed, by several thousand, all past records, there is no liability of the city being unable to care for the crowd, as the Chamber of Commerce committee, headed by Colonel George B. Christian, which has the arrangements in hand, has anticipated the increased attendance and made every provision therefor. "Come One—Come All" is the slogan of the committee. It is estimated that there were 40,000 people in attendance on the closing day of the encampment at Mansfield last year. There is every reason to believe that the number will top the 50,000 mark

Emphasis should be given to the tireless efforts of Colonel George B. Christian, as the head of the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce, in working out each and every detail of the plans for the encampment. Colonel Christian is a figure of statewide reputation and, owing to the prominence of the man, a few words are said in reference to his military career. He enlisted in the army at the age of sixteen years, in the year of 1863, when, on account of the depleted ranks, following the battles of Fredericksburg and Charlottesville, youths under age were this year, so great is the interest in the golden anniversary, and because of the fact that the location of Marion is so strategic for all Ohio points. The city is served by five railroads and two traction lines. The sum of $7,000 has been subscribed for the entertainment of the visitors, and this sum, which exceeds that raised by any city of Ohio for a similar purpose, will provide a program which means something doing every minute. So many veterans have arranged to spend the entire four days at the encampment that the committee has prepared a full program, commencing Monday evening when a greetings meeting will be held in the opera house. Without going into the details of the program, it might be said that there will be more than the usual number of pa-permitted to enlist. He served as a drummer boy in the One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Infantry, and was under arms during the Morgan raid. He was later promoted to a private in the Fifth Battalion Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. Mr. Christian enjoys the title of colonel by newspaper brevet created by Senator Harding when Mr. Christian was selected president of the Thirtieth Ohio Cavalry Association.

For information in detail concerning the program, arrangements for reservations and any other matter which has to do with the encampment, communications may be addressed to the secretary of the committee for the G. A. R. Encampment, Marion, Ohio, and prompt attention will be given to all inquiries.

MARKETS

WALL ST. MARKET BECOMES NORMAL

NEW YORK, June 13.—Medium or low-priced rails became the foremost features later, Western Maryland common and preferred, Wheeling and Lake Eries, Lake Erie and Western and Wisconsin Central rising 1 to 4 points, with Denver and Long Island issues. The movement in certain of these stocks was attributed to definite causes, but otherwise the inquiry seemed to be chiefly speculative. Louisville and Nashville rose 2 1/2 to its best price in almost two years. Shipping shares, Mexicans and other specialties became more heavy at midday with pressure against steel, but Beet Sugar increased its gain. Bonds were steady.

The market settled down to more normal conditions at today's opening, the excitement and breadth of yesterday's early operations being altogether lacking. Initial quotations were fractionally higher for the most part, although some issues, notably Texas Company, Long Island and Denver and Rio Grande preferred rose a point or more. Beet Sugar and Air brake were again conspicuous among the specialties, the former advancing to the new record of 87 1/2. United States Steel, yesterday's leader, was barely steady, with pronounced heaviness in Mexican Petroleum.

Last sales were: Allis-Chalmers 27 1/4; American Beet Sugar 89 1/2; American Can 58; American Car & Foundry 59 1/2; American Locomotive 73 1/2; American Smelting and Refining 96 1/2; American Sugar Refining 11 1/2; American Tel. and Tel. 130; Anaconda Copper 85 1/2; Atchafalpa 106 1/2; Baldwin Locomotive 89 1/2; Baltimore & Ohio 91 1/2; Bethlehem Steel 44 1/2; Brooklyn Rapid Transit 87 1/2; Butte and Superior 95 1/2; California Petroleum 22 1/2; Canadian Pacific 176 1/2; Central Leather 54 1/2; Chesapeake and Ohio 66 1/2; Chicago, Mil. & St. Paul 100 1/2; Chicago, R. WHEAT STRONGER AFTER EARLY LOSS

CHICAGO, June 13.—Strength developed in the wheat market today after an early decline that resulted from lower quotations at Liverpool and from favorable weather for the domestic crop. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-4c to 5-8c lower, with July at $1.02 1-2 to $1.02 3-4 and September at $1.04 1-4 to 1.04 5-8, were followed by an upturn to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn swayed with wheat. The weather was against the bulls but selling was only of a scattered sort. After opening 1-4 to 1-2 lower, the market recovered the losses and scored some gains.

Commission houses selling depressed oats. Little power to rebound was shown.
Provisions rose with hogs. The receipts at the yards here were less plentiful than expected.
The wheat close was firm, 1 1/2 and 1 1/4 to 1 1/2c net higher with July at $1.04 1/4, and September at $1.06 1/4. The corn close was strong at 3/4 and 1/2 to 1/2c net advance. BIG CHAUTAUQUA IS LIMA'S NEXT JOB

Best Talent in Nation Here the Week Starting July 13.

Plans for the big chautauqua, which will be held in Lima opening Thursday, July 13, and lasting a week, will be started within the next day or so, when Clarence E. Brown, representative of the Coit-Alber chautauqu circuit, will arrive in Lima to boost the big meeting.

The county will be thoroughly canvassed for purchasers of the tickets. A chautauqua has not been held in Lima for some years. The Lyceum company is bringing to Lima this year Miss Ida Tarbell, noted writer, who has never before appeared upon a chautauqua program. Her subject will be "Industrial Idealism".

The chautauqua is expected to draw hundreds of people from surrounding towns, because of the nature of the program and the high class numbers to be given.

Nothing regarding the whereabouts of Herbert Post and Frank Rickett, who escaped from the Lima State Insane hospital, Sunday morning, has been learned. However, Superintendent Clarke is of the opinion that they will be located within a short time as a description of the men has been sent to all surrounding towns.

Charles Day, who escaped from the hospital north of Lima last November is said to have been located in the Illinois penitentiary, at Chester, that state. According to information received from officers of that institution he is serving time there for burglary. He will not be returned to the Lima institution until he has served his time in Illinois.

WOMAN'S MARTYRDOM.
How many men, think you, have any idea of the pain and misery endured by women of their own households, who suffer from this peculiar to their sex? They often see them smiling and trying to be cheerful, even while racked with pain. If every such woman would only be guided by the experience of thousands of others who have been restored to health by that grand old remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, much suffering might be avoided.

SALOON KEEPER IS HELD FOR MURDER
CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—Fred Maxfield, saloonkeeper, was under arrest at Linndale, a suburb today for murder following a sensational shooting in the court room of Mayor Linn at Linndale last night in which Peter Cosuera, plaintiff in a suit against Maxfield was killed. Maxfield was on trial for assault on Cosuera, and when the trial grew interesting Cosuera became excited and it is claimed by Maxfield reached for his gun. Maxfield also drew a revolver, officials say, and several shots were fired, Cosuera finally falling, fatally wounded, and died later.

CATHOLIC TITLES GIVEN IN CEREMONY
TOLEDO, O., June 13.—Several hundred Roman Catholic priests and many laymen today attended the ceremony of investiture of the title of Monsignor by Pope Benedict XV, on Right Rev. John T. O'Connell, D. D., vicar general of the Toledo diocese, and Rev. August J. Schwertner, diocesan chancellor. Bishop Joseph Schrembs sang the pontifical high mass.

Fathers O'Connell and Schwertner were escorted to St. Francis de Sales cathedral in which the ceremony took place by Bishop Schrembs, Bishop Kelly of Detroit, Bishop Gallagher of Grand Rapids, Mich., and 200 priests.

If You Suffer from Backache, Lumbago, Kidneys or Rheumatism, Take Hot Water and "ANURIC"

American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out. They weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, when you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your druggist—"ANURIC". Because of uric acid in over-abundance in the

TAXES MUST BE IN BY JULY 20, CERTAIN

Treasurer Announces No
Money Will be Taken
After That.

Not a dollar of tax money will be collected or even received after July 20, according to the announcement of County Treasurer W. E. Tussing today. While previously some of the big corporations and heavy taxpayers have turned over their money and asked that it be accepted after July 20, this year County Treasurer Tussing says it will be refused and their property placed on the delinquent tax list.

While the time for payment of taxes expires on June 20, the board of county commissioners and county treasurer have decided to allow one month's additional time for the payment of taxes. In Hamilton county, wherein is located Cincinnati, this year this accommodation was refused and taxes must be paid by June 20. Allen county people are therefore granted a favor not even accorded to Cincinnatians.
Mr. Tussing states that not a check, voucher or money order has ever been lost while he has been in the office and if taxpayers cannot come to the office, if they will, ascertain the amount of their taxes, enclosing the money to pay for same and a two-cent stamp for receipt, the same will be forwarded at once.

While a few have paid taxes already, there still remain hundreds of people whose taxes are unpaid.
Employees of the office will be glad to wait on every one, but payment before the big rush of the last of the month and July begins, will save discomfort and the long time standing in line before the county treasurer's window.
